

Hax

Version 1.x · a scenario for Realmz

Read Me / Installation

Welcome to Hax, a scenario for Realmz!

Hax 1.0 has been built to run with Realmz version 7.0.4. You may have differing degrees of success if you run it a different version.

To install Hax:

- drag the folder named Hax into the Scenario folder inside your Realmz folder
- launch Realmz
- from the Adventure menu, select the item Install Divinity Scenario
- a dialog box appears. Type: Hax
- if you type: HAX or hax or achs or anything else, the game won't install
- if you will see the prompt "Scenario has been added." Click on this prompt

- from the Adventure menu, select the item Hax. It should be near the bottom of the menu
 - press Command-B and select your characters
-

Comments? Questions? Etc.?

The Story

The Book of Hax

The Madwood is a partially flooded valley full of twisted and withered willows. A few of the trees had knocked Lucky off his feet on occasion, but there had been none of the bloodcurdling events that superstitious folk prattle on about. No ghostly paladin galloping through the night, no winged demons waiting in ambush. No zombie king lurking in his hidden castle.

Not yet.

Lucky had been living in the Madwood for several months now, overseeing the construction of a massive tunnel which would link the town of Hax with the outside world. At first word of the calamity, he pulled on his cap and rushed out to inspect the damage. Lucky was violating the one rule he had insisted on laying down: nobody goes through the Madwood alone. But his tunnel had collapsed, he had to make sure no one was hurt, there was no time to waste.

The willows were restless that night. Political struggles at the highest level had culminated in a fate worse than death for one in their elder council. Suspicions ran rampant. They would not suffer some dwarven hotshot to scamper past with impunity.

Lucky tripped over a tree root that wasn't there a moment before. As he struggled to his feet, a dark elf sprung out of hiding and struck a vicious blow to the base of his skull. The tunnel to Hax had collapsed into rubble, and the genius who envisioned it had fallen into the hands of the ruthless dark elves.

You have come to this valley in search of the elusive town of Hax. It is said the town is overflowing with precious gems that impart tremendous powers. Many a brave soul has sought to open a trade route to Hax. Will you dare find success, where they found naught but an unmarked grave?

Unravel the myriad secrets of the Madwood, where power lurks behind the mask of weakness and the very armor on your back may seal your doom.

Clicketh me to summon ye

TABLE OF CONTENTS

The Madwood

The Madwood

THE MADWOOD

Your adventure begins in the Madwood, a haunted forest populated by enraged willows and crazed beasts. Surprises await at almost every turn in the road, but here are a few highlights:

The Nasties

A race of mutated cacodaemons who escaped from the Abyss in one of the infamous Towers of Doom, nasties can charm with a bite, while their huge claws can incinerate or electrify. As if this is not nasty enough, the nasties have two venomous stingers, one containing a deadly poison and the other infected with a virulent disease. Luckily, they are cowards and will often run from a battle even if they're winning. The wise adventurer will not pursue them.

Spike

In the southwest quadrant of the Madwood, you find a boy throwing rocks. If you can befriend him, he will be a useful guide in the early part of your adventure.

The Bards

Not far from here is a small community of bards. Bards, like many creative types, enjoy their own company and often gather in small groups to share ancient tales and to collaborate on new ones. Bards are often treated as royalty wherever they go, for an offended bard might compose a satire that would turn a respected nobleman into a laughingstock! Since most bards began their lives as wandering rogues, their swords can be as mighty as their pens.

The Keysmith

Persist in your encounter with the Keysmith, and he'll eventually agree to part with his skeleton key, if you can find him a capable apprentice. It's especially hard to find good help in the Madwood, what with all the Nasties running about.

Greedy's Used Sloops

Boats have a tendency to get left behind in the flooded mazes of the Madwood, but luckily for you there's a happy little ex-pirate named Greedy who will gladly sell you a used sloop for more gems than you can imagine. His prominent shack sits on an island in the southeast.

The Rapids

While you're sailing about, you'll eventually come upon the rapids. Proceed slowly in this area, or you'll surely come to ruin on the outcroppings of stone! A Waterworld spell cast at the proper time might delay the inevitable disaster, but it will only get you so far before Davey Jones comes calling.

Wood

If you can find his cabin and get the door open, the creature named Wood will be a valuable ally. Formerly one of the Great Ones Reaching Skyward, Wood can tell you much about the Madwood and its ruler, the Greenman.

Canterbury and Chamomile

It's hard to know what to make of this old couple. They say they have been exiled to this remote island for religious differences, an unusually harsh punishment considering the savage bears that inhabit the caves to the west.

Five Corners

"The Home of the Mouthwatering Hydra," Five Corners is a quiet little town on the northeastern outskirts of the Madwood. Many travelers like this town so much they never leave. Maybe it's the cuisine. In spite of its unassuming appearance, Five Corners is heavily guarded and thievery is not tolerated.

Leper Colony

No haunted forest would be complete without its very own colony of leprous leprechauns. Don't bother trying to placate them - no matter how much gold you give, they will ask for more. Just prepare yourself for one heck of a fight.

Basil

Basil is a very gifted orc healer. Unfortunately he's not much of a fighter and this means he won't last long. Don't throw away his book, you'll need it later.

The Anti'id Cabal

Many centuries ago, an army of mind slayers came to the Realmz and almost succeeded in destroying all living creatures. They were defeated, but that was last time. Hidden under the Madwood is a labyrinth peopled by the anti'id cabal -- conjurers seeking to bring about the second coming of the anti'ids. You'll have an unrivaled opportunity to meet several new breeds of mind slayers. Hopefully, someone in your party knows the Wizard Eye spell. This dungeon is really tough.

The Greenman

Deep in the Madwood lives the entity who rules the forest. Long ago his hatred for the elves brought him into alliance with several different evil races. The Madwood reflects his tolerance of evil. This powerful earth elemental has grown old, and the evil creatures surrounding him whisper conspiratorially about his downfall. After your first meeting with the Greenman, when he leaves you to the tender mercies of a toxic mushroom mound, you will find him in his island cave in the heart of the Madwood. There are no stepping stones to get onto his island, but luckily you will find a boulder-hurling shantile who lives nearby.

The Greenman's Crown

Whoever wears the crown of the Greenman will rule the Madwood. Trust me, you don't want to become the next ruler of the Madwood. It involves a painful metamorphosis, and those endless meetings with the elder council will make you wish you weren't immortal. Expect to be wooed and/or attacked by several power-hungry creatures as you carry this crown with you. A squadron of nether giants will be searching for you and will invite you to the castle of their master, Posthumous. You can refuse them several times, but eventually one of the giants will become offended and challenge you to a fight.

Posthumous' Castle

Eventually you may grow weary of all these invitations and agree to visit the zombie king, Posthumous. Posthumous was once a very dangerous king of the Abyss, but his powers were hamstrung by a clever paladin a century ago. Posthumous really wants the Greenman's crown, and if he succeeds in sweet-talking you into giving it up, he will use it to avenge himself on all the living creatures in the Realmz. Remember that movie where they opened up the Ark of the Covenant? Then you probably won't want to let Posthumous have the crown.

The Elder Council

A grove of the Madwood's best and brightest willows, mush mounds, and precocious saplings. Many in the elder council share the Greenman's mistrust of elves and their ilk (i.e., you). Only you can decide if you trust the Council enough to give them the crown.

Zhark the Slaver

Eventually you'll have the misfortune of meeting the shadow elf called Zhark the Slaver. Why he chooses to live so far from the shores of Manifest is a mystery. Those who cross paths with Zhark invariably wind up in the slave markets of the far east islands.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Tips: The Town of Manifest

Town of Manifest

TheTown of Manifest

MANIFEST

Lady Dawn's Estate

Rumor has it that Lady Dawn - a prominent landowner in the dark elf nobility -- has a health problem. Illness is especially catastrophic for dark elves, since their society views any kind of weakness with open contempt. In any case, as one of Lady Dawn's slaves, you are not given the opportunity to meet her. You will, however, meet her slave overseer, an ugly gnoll with a whip fetish.

Gara

Gara is a gargoyle, a primitive race of winged reptilians. She was captured and blinded by dark elves several weeks before meeting you. Gara is very strong and speedy. When she asks to join your party, you would be wise to welcome her.

Lady Dawn's Mansion

Somewhere in the cavernous entrance hall of Lady Dawn's mansion hangs a portrait of a beautiful woman. This might be helpful in reviving an enchanted statue, or it might be what we scenario writers call a red herring. In any case, the statue hasn't eaten or drank in centuries, so he's rather hungry. If you feed him, he's a much better ally. Oh, and there is a way out of the room of sickness -- all you have to do is find it before you drop dead.

Beneath Lady Dawn's Mansion

Legions of rats live in the caverns under Lady Dawn's mansion. As successive generations developed immunities to various forms of pesticide, a breed of superrat emerged. While these creatures are difficult to fight off, you'll discover they are not the ultimate in rat evolution.

Entering Manifest

The town of Manifest is heavily guarded by enchanted walls and skilled marksmen. You will have to hack your way through the walls before you can reach the marksmen. A missile shield spell could come in very handy in this battle.

Once inside, you will meet a traveling merchant selling marvelous items for very low prices.

Caveat emptor

.

Dirtbag Temple

Since there is such a stigma on illness in dark elf society, healers are generally held in low regard, and you will find their temples overpriced and their clerics to be mostly dirtbags. At least the goblins in the eastern district of Goblin town have a good grasp of the healing arts. If there is a goblin in your party, they will charge you very little to remove any curses you might be stuck with, or heal the occasional case of blindness.

The Mayor's House

The mayor is largely a figurehead, with little real political power. The four witches are the true rulers of Manifest.

The First Manifest Bank

Aside from the free anachronism for opening an account here, the nice thing about the Manifest Bank is you can store items here and get them back for a small fee.

The Blazing Squid Coffee House

If you impress the bartender by buying the Decaffeinated Double Espressiccino, he will invite you to purchase some of his more potent libations. Burly Limbsnapper, a half orc hustler carrying the fabled Death's Head Axe, will challenge you to an arm wrestling match. Be prepared for some nasty consequences if you accept his challenge. Only a monk has the leverage necessary to beat Limbsnapper. He's not a gracious loser.

The Pugilist's Guild

These dark elves love boxing so much that they all want to box you at once. They offer a small prize to anyone who can survive a match with them.

The Four Monks

The food here is supposed to be great, but there have been some cases of food poisoning. If you are successful in bringing the statue to life, but haven't gotten around to feeding him, he will make an ugly scene at this restaurant which leads to quite a brawl.

No Vampires Shop

The management of this magic shop has a very strict policy against vampires. A very very strict policy. In fact, they'll kill any vampire attempting to cross the threshold. Dead vampires are not welcome either.

Lucky's House

Lucky's amazing skill with architecture has made him a favorite of the four witches. He is one of the few slaves permitted to live in his own house, right in the center of town.

Slaves R US

For the low-end consumer of slaves. Most of the creatures imprisoned in Slaves R Us are hostile, dangerous and totally unsuitable for domestic duties. Here you will find the religious leader of the goblins, the Shaman Supreme. If you don't kill him, he will ally himself with you. Return him to the goblin temple and he will reward you dearly.

Manifest Guard

The Manifest Guard are looking for a few good badguys. If you join their ranks, they'll be less likely to attack you in future confrontations.

The Unseen Charmers

These magical creatures guard the entrance to Ceithir's castle. While they are not unbeatable, you can avoid them completely if you know the secret hidden in the Kobold funhouse.

The Kobold Funhouse

Kobolds love to frolic around underground pools of molten lava, and their tourist dollars are attracted to Manifest by this labyrinthine structure. If you survive your visit, you may uncover a valuable clue on getting into the castles of the four witches.

The Gate

Wandering down a heavily-guarded walled in area north of Manifest, you encounter a gate where you are asked for the password. If you cannot give the password, a bevy of blue anti'ids will emerge and attack you. Maybe you should find out the password first?

Ceithir's Castle

As in all four of the witches' castles, your challenge is to find the witch and discover the clue that will let you enter the next castle. Ceithir is especially fond of mazes. To find her, you must navigate through a maze of tiny rooms, through a maze of fire, to battle a family of ice dragons.

Drei's Castle

Drei is adept at teleportation and disorientation. Stepping onto one of her teleporting disks could send you to an unfamiliar room, or to a room identical to the one you just left. Persistence will eventually lead you to her throne room, and to her regiment of acid-breathing brown dragons. For the next clue, you must defeat a roomful of superrats, then find a number of very tricky secret passages.

Deux's Castle

Deux fancies herself an artist of sorts, and her castle is a huge exhibit of bones and eggs. Don't leave here until you find her fiery treasure cache! It may be your only hope of entering the next castle.

Uno's Castle

Uno is a lover of anagrams, palindromes and sundry wordplay. She has an important clue if you want to ever get past those bleu anti'ids. Unfortunately her penchant for riddles makes her somewhat unintelligible.

Zhark's Castle

Another maddening maze enclosed within stone walls, Zhark's castle hides a very important map. It's almost as difficult to find as the way out.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Tips: Greater Manifest

Greater Manifest

Greater Manifest

GREATER MANIFEST

There's some interesting places to explore outside the gates of the town. Sure, you're likely to be attacked by massive, poisonous snakes, giant badgers, and other swamp monsters, but you also have a chance of finding fabulous treasure and some really cool weaponry.

Lizardman Garden

If you can get past the guard, you will find a cavernous region populated by lizardmen.

Like any community unfortunate enough to live so close to a town full of dark elves, these creatures are not especially quick to roll out the red carpet to every passing gang of thugs. You will have to find a way to communicate with the guard if you want to get inside. Or you can try killing him, but don't expect to be especially popular with the rest of the lizardmen.

If you convince the guard that you come in peace, he will give you six magical robes. Now don't get all excited. These robes actually decrease your characters' abilities. They are not cursed robes, however -- you can remove them at any time. But if you remove them while you're in the garden, you will find yourself teleported to a far corner of the swamp.

The lizardmen are ruled by a dictatorial wizard named Kearney. In order to maintain total control, Kearney forces his people to wear these restrictive robes and heavy weights. The lizardmen are on the brink of revolution -- your presence may tip the scales in their favor.

Head Pond

This strange water formation embodies a sentient spirit. If you stand on one of the stepping stones in the pond, the spirit will ask you a question. If you answer the question correctly, the spirit will tell you the password to Zhark's castle.

Shark Lake

If you stand on one of the stepping stones in this pond, you will be attacked by water elementals.

Circle of Mud - x35y50 - x50y58

If you can get past the savage dogcows that guard the entrances to this circle of black mud, you will find a familiar looking house. The interior is very different from the disorienting structures favored by the dark elves.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Tips: Getting to Hax

Getting To Hax

Getting to Hax

GETTING TO HAX

Once you've put together the necessary clues and escaped from Manifest, you will find yourself very close to where you started at the beginning of the game -- which is definitely a step in the right direction. It is very important to keep Lucky alive at this point. Losing him now will make it impossible to finish the game.

In time, Lucky will show you how to find the hidden entrance to his tunnel. This will bring you to the site of the construction workers and eventually to the region of the cursed caves.

There is no way to prevent Lucky from being kidnapped. The best you can hope for is to find your way to Hax and get some allies so you can go searching for him. Again.

The Cursed Caves

Somewhere in this godforsaken ravine is the remaining passage to Hax. Only persistence and imagination will lead you to it. There is also some treasure, but mostly a lot of monsters who want to kill you.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Tips: Town of Hax

Town of Hax

The Town of Hax

THE TOWN OF HAX

If you survived this far, you will find yourself in the town of Hax. Some of the more interesting shops are in this town, as well as a branch of the Mercenary's Guild, where you can hire out some strong allies. Because of the bitterly cold climate and the miasma of caustic vapors that sweep through the area, Hax has become something of a tourist attraction for kobolds, as well as a summer haven for vacationing orcs.

Countess Deidre

King Richard's most trusted advisor, Countess Deidre still hasn't gotten over Lucky's disappearance. News of his current whereabouts may displease her even more.

Cardinal Fang

If you wander around Hax long enough you will meet Cardinal Fang, a dwarven cleric of the Church of Holy Olo. The Cardinal is gathering together an expedition to search for the tomb of Zhark the Paladin. If you are lucky enough to be invited to join the Cardinal's expedition, go for it. Some really fabulous treasure lies ahead, as well as some surprising revelations about Zhark the Slaver and Posthumous.

The Graveyard

As in the city of Bywater, the dead in Hax don't seem to stay dead very long. Nor are they particularly hospitable toward mortals who wander into their turf.

King Richard's Castle

A rather excitable sort, King Richard is very anxious to find Lucky, as he is probably the only dwarf in the Realmz who can repair the collapsed tunnel. If you agree to help, he will grant you your pick of weapons from the town armory.

The Orc Rind Vendor

Yes, there is an orc rind vendor in Hax. Orc rinds are a semi-nutritious compound of mystery meats fried in a bucket of fermented lards in a secret recipe handed down from one orcish matriarch to the next since the dawn of time. Most races crave orc rinds slightly less than being trampled by stampeding trigwigs, but to orcs this snack is the nectar of the gods.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Tips: The Endgame

Outskirts of Hax

The Outskirts of Hax

The Outskirts of Hax

The outskirts of Hax, to put it nicely, is a nightmare. Imagine a frozen wilderness awash in a sea of acid. Add some frost dragons and a slew of green dragons for color. Lucky's out there somewhere.

Dwarf Town

It is said that dwarves are generally distrustful of magic, and nowhere is this more true than in the dour little town of dwarves known as Dwarf Town. There's not much to do here, but you can get into a fight in the Dwarf Town Inn to ease the boredom.

The Shanahy's Hut

A shanahy is a storyteller. When you find this elderly hobgoblin, he'll tell you a little story about a dark elf who lived back in the day of the Necronomicon, when the Realmz and the Abyss almost merged into the same plane of existence. The shanahy also has an incredibly powerful stone called the Eye of the Gods. While you don't have to get this stone to find your way around the desecrated monastery, it will make the task much easier.

The Monastery

Once dedicated to the pursuit of education in the ways of Holy Olo, this monastery has been abandoned to the elements, and has recently become a haven for some powerful demons, who have filled the place with wild beasts and some fiendishly clever booby-traps. Since it was originally built by a dark elf, the monastery is another twisty maze of little passages, with more than a few blind corridors and secret passages. There's a lot to find in here. Go to it.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

The Endgame

Endgame

The Endgame

THE ENDGAME

When you leave the monastery, you should have found a map which will clue you in on where to go next. (If you don't have the map, go back and find it, because you'll never finish the game without it!)

Find the spot on the map and speak the magic word. If you survive, you can return to Hax to collect your reward.

If you survive what happens in Hax after you go to collect your reward, you will get some excellent treasure and allies.

If you don't survive, try again. Persistence pays off in this game.

NEXT ->

Hax FAQ's

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Hax FAQ's

Hax FAQ's

Hax FAQ's

Q: So, what's the point here?

A: The object of Hax is to find Lucky and help him get to the town of Hax, without being slaughtered by the legions of hydras, leperchauns, witches, armor eaters, lizardmen, anti'ids, dogcows and the other assorted nasties you meet along the way. As in most of the Realmz scenarios, you'll find many mysteries to ponder, many powerful creatures that may ally themselves with you if you play your cards right, many opportunities for your characters to acquire new treasures and magical weapons, and many deadly foes to outwit.

Q: What does the scroll "Get Out Of Jail Free" do?

A: Not much. There's a one-in-four chance that it'll set you free if you wind up in the Five Corners jail. In the Leper Colony jail ... let's just say it doesn't help.

Q: What does the scroll "Moral Compass" do?

A: Nothing. It's just a subtle hint that picking locks might not always be the right thing to do.

Q: What does the toaster do?

A: Nothing.

Q: What curses does Zhark place when you first meet him?

A: Zhark turns most magical rings into the Ring of Mute. Then he casts a Blind spell on your party and changes most magic boots into Blind Man's Boots. This is followed by a Dumbstruck spell, to make sure all your spellcasters have been silenced.

Q: What spell is Lady Dawn casting in the battle with the Obsidian Guardians?

A: Heal blindness.

Q: Is there any way to not kill the Shaman Supreme?

A: Yes. Don't bring any allies into the cell with you. And don't confuse the Guard command with the

Finish

command.

Guard

will automatically cause your character to attack if the Shaman attacks.

Finish

will finish your character's turn for the current round..

Finish

is the one you want if you don't want to attack. Also, keep an eye on any of your characters who can reflect attacks. If one of them is next to the SS when the battle begins, swap him with one of your other characters.

NEXT ->

Arcana Esoterica

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Arcana Esoterica

Arcana Esoterica

ARCANA ESOTERICA

Great

battles

you may have missed:

- * try what happens when you attempt to hack Elmo into firewood.
- * challenge the Manifest archers to battle
- * bring the statue at Lady Dawn's castle to life, but don't feed him. Then take him to the Four Monks restaurant and see what happens.

Items

to look for

- * Bag of Wind - A cool breeze can always be found in this bag.
- * Eye of the Gods - Wizard Eye on steroids.
- * Halberd +4 - Finally, a two-handed melee weapon worth carrying!
- * Rigor Mortis - These gloves causes your victim to age. Oddities: you cannot carry any close-range weapons when you wear these gloves, and occasionally causes your party to appear to be on a ship.
- * Golden Chain - Chain mail which imparts invisibility to its wearer. Especially useful for archers, this armor lets you step back from an opponent and use a missile weapon without taking a hit.
- * Anti'id Statue - There are two identical anti'id statues, so watch it! One can launch a deadly Psi Wave spell on your opponents. The other casts Pulse, a nasty little spell that indiscriminately strikes everyone in the immediate vicinity of the caster, friend or foe.

- * Dragon's Blood - A potion that gives the entire party Dragon Hide.
- * Forkproof Gloves - Aside from its obvious use, these gloves lessen the damage inflicted by Acid Tridents.
- * Alkaline Belt - This belt lessens chemical damage (kobolds only).
- * Quack spell scroll - Quack is sort of a cross between Quake and Cosmic Blast. It scatters devastatingly powerful Quake "mines" onto every square occupied by an enemy.
- * Spade of Diamonds - An enchanted shovel.

FOR ARCHERS/MARKSMEN ONLY

- * Apollo's Wrath - A crossbow that can deliver electric shocks to all enemies.
- * Exploding Arrow of Anzio - This arrow targets an area five times larger than conventional arrows.
- * Firestorm - An enchanted arrow containing the spell Plane of Fire.
- * Snowstorm - An enchanted arrow containing the spell Plane of Ice.
- * Archer of Plenty - This statue will multiply the number of magic arrows your archer is carrying.

CURSES

!

- * Escargo Bar - A cursed sword that slows down and weakens its owner.
- * Medusa's Bite - A cursed whip that turns its owner to stone.
- * Cape of Bad News - A cursed robe that poisons its wearer.
- * Cabalist Statue - A cursed statue that casts Flame Spikes on all your allies.
- * Tools For Fools - Cursed rogue tools that decrease the holder's ability to pick locks and disarm traps.
- * Contagious Wounds scroll - A cursed spell, this casts Festering Wounds on all friends.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Hax Characters

Hax Characters

The Madwood

Hax Characters

In the folder Hax Characters you'll find character files you can import and use in any Realmz scenario.

If you don't know how to import character files, check out the chapter in your Realmz Manual titled
Starting a New Adventure - Importing Characters

.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Custom Castes & Races

Hax is Werewolf-Savvy!

Hax is Werewolf-Savvy!

HAX IS WEREWOLF-SAVVY!

Hax supports the custom races and castes created by Jed Wheeler in his scenario Beginning of the End (soon to be known as the Hellspawn Cycle). Here's how to create characters of your own:

- * Launch Realmz

- * From the Adventure menu, select Hax (or Beginning of the End)

- * From the Adventure menu, select Begin New Adventure (Command-B)

- * Select any character, click

Add

.

Run

- * When the scenario loads, select End Adventure from the Adventure menu (Command-E)

- * When you are asked if you want to save, click No
- * From the Character menu, select Generate New Character (Command-G)
- * You can now create characters of the Adept or Survivor caste and Werewolf or Gargoyle races.

For more info on these powerful new character types, check out Jed's website.
<http://www.geocities.com/Area51/Dungeon/8942/>

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Tunes

Tunes

Tunes

TUNES

Realmz is configured to play different tunes depending on which land level you're on. So, if you're outdoors, the default music you hear is "After The Rain." In a cave, the default music is "Hallucinations."

Realmz now has a number of new land levels, but they don't have default music to go along with them.

Select

How To Alter Music

from the Music menu in Realmz to get the full story on setting up your own custom tunes.

Since most of the music I found on the internet were totally inappropriate for Realmz, I ended up duplicating several of the files in the Realmz Music folder and renaming them so as to have music on every land level.

There's also a file I found called "Demon's Revenge" that used to be in Realmz but is no longer used. Since I liked this tune much better than the default

Dungeon Music

, I trashed the default file and replaced it with "Demon's Revenge."

It took me a while to get everything to play properly. If you name a file
Outdoor Music(Snow)

instead of
Outdoor Music (Snow)
with a space between Music and (Snow), then you won't hear any music.

If you don't want to deal with this kind of stuff, you may like the AppleScript I've included in the folder

Hax Tunes

.

This AppleScript will:

duplicate your Cave Music file and rename it Outdoor Music (Swamp) duplicate your Outdoor Music file and rename it Outdoor Music (Snow) duplicate your Indoor Music file and rename it Outdoor Music (Desert)

You shall have music wherever you go.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NEXT ->

Why Pay?

Special Thanks

Tunes

THANKS

Hax would not have been possible without the help of Tim Phillips, creator of Realmz, Divinity and Fantasoftware LLC. Tim's tech support has been top shelf, and if you haven't bought everything that Fantasoftware's selling yet, you're missing out on some great stuff.

I am also indebted to the members of the Divinity Guild, for sharing inspirations, commiserating with frustrations, and generally keeping this fledgling on the straight and narrow.

Most importantly, I need to thank my beta testing crew, who helped me locate and destroy more bugs than I ever dreamed I could possibly create. Rafa Acosta, Nolan McCoy, Flabio and Skip Meier deserve special thanks for the time and effort they invested in this project.

Oh, and thanks to Flabio's sister for the cute pixie icon.

<-

TABLE OF CONTENTS